I've been listening to public comment for the past couple hours. Many sincere voices have spoken and I think the problem I see is having too small a picture. This decision is not about Longview and maybe 200 jobs. It's about all life along the Columbia, all life in the Pacific Northwest, and not for now or twenty years, but for many decades into the future. The short-sightedness includes jobs and profits now for China's toxic pollution blowing back on us even if Millennial standards here are high. Also short-sighted is assuming China and Asia will keep importing longterm; they won't and have said they won't. Think longterm, broadly and way beyond longview. Vote no action.
