If Millennium has their way up to 400,000 of coal dust will be deposited along the Columbia River each day. That dust contains arsenic, lead, mercury and uranium and other toxins harmful to fish, wildlife, and humans. The effects of this pollution will be felt years and years into the future. It will make the Columbia river and gorge a wasteland, all for a few jobs for a few years. We will be the next Detroit or Cleveland... a desolate, dead, wasteland. I currently live on the banks of the Columbia river. If this goes through I no longer want to live here. Dr. Harold Kriesel, Cathlamet, Washington
