Full Democracy?
There is a system failure that brings us a coal project during a fossil-fuel-caused climate emergency. These projects come from a few short-sighted men operating in a financial system that does not recognize science, the rights of community members, and democracy itself.
The permitting system should recognize the systems outside of itself: climate science, the necessity of a healthy living things system, and democracy as a system with rights prior to the rights of the financial few.
