I urge decision-makers to carry out a wide-reaching EIS, to encompass the effects of a terminal, increased train traffic, and coal burning, no matter what country the coal is burned in. Anything less will be woefully inadequate, and I fear that if it is not considered at this time, the time to halt harms will not come. Rather than thinking in terms of how much harm we can "safely" do, could we instead imagine what we, our progeny, and our fellow species need <sup>in order</sup> to thrive? Is there a body out there to take care of these issues beyond the terminal area if it is not done now?
