coal is such an outdated fuel. first we destroy the over burden to mine coal with the promise of total restoration of the land. Has not and can not be done. Then we pollute the land ~~and~~ and rivers with the coal + its toxins. we then burn fossil fuel to transport it across the ocean only to burn the coal, create air pollution so bad that china has to build enclosed playgrounds at schools because the air is so polluted that they don't want their children to breathe it. Then we have to build ~~some~~ monitoring stations in the Pacific North so we can know how much polluted air from asia we are breathing.

The jobs that this project would create would be better ~~served~~ served building an aggressive alternative energy company.

Millennium is like the tobacco industry telling us that this project is good for us despite the health risks, environmental damage, let alone the issue of global warming that coal is a very large contributor to.

No more coal exports
