I am a resident of Kalama, Washington. I live approximately one mile from the Burlington Northern railroad tracks that run between Interstate 5 and the Columbia River. I encourage you to study the environmental impacts of this proposed project not only at the terminal site but to include the broad scope of effects that would and could potentially impact air quality and water quality from the mine site all the way to the coal fire plant in Asia, whether that be China, India, Japan or other developing country.

My concerns are primarily regarding the impacts of coal dust generated through the transport, stockpiling and loading of coal and its effects on air and water quality.

My secondary concerns are the impacts to the environment that result from the burning of coal. These impacts include the release of carbon dioxide, mercury, uranium, thorium and arsenic. The effects from burning coal include but are not limited to contributing to acid rain and the introduction of methylmercury that accumulates in fish and the animals (including humans) that eat these fish.
