I really feel that the promotion of coal usage is archaic. In this day and age of infinite possibilities for the ~~full~~ implementation of clean energy, the polluting, environmentally destructive, green house gasses wreaking havoc on our climate are dumb founding we could be putting so many more people to work building, maintaining, developing clean energy such as tidal power, solar and wind. The very few people that benefit economically from the ancient, destructive source of power are just that, Ancient selfish, powerful.

On an economic note - the relatively small number of jobs created by the coal trains (Long term) is tremendously offset by the incredibly large number of small family business along with larger corporate businesses dependant on the tourist industry, suffering from the incessant rumble of trains creating massive traffic jams preventing people from accessing the river for the incredible positive tourist activity - restaurants, hotels, windsurfers, fishermen hiking/mountain climbing etc will ALL BE AFFECTED! Each train takes 20-30 minutes to pass through an intersection (I know, I've timed them!), The noise is unbearable day and night, and home values are going to plummet! The Gorge is an amazing place to call home! Don't ruin it by promoting an environmentally destructive and pocket filling for the few individuals and corporation that would benefit - AT WHAT COST !!!
