I am Eliza I am 12. Me being so young as I am you may think I don't know much you may be surprised. I know that it hurts animals, children, adults and the elderly men and women. Even though it helps create jobs it does not mean it is a good thing.

When the ~~state~~ coal dust flies off the train it goes in to schools, homes, and ~~one~~ <sup>some</sup> of the most important the wild life and forests.

When ever you think that you are doing good by increasing coal exports also think of the children in hospitals missing school and life experiences, all because of coal and its dust.

When you have the coal dust goes in to other places such as stores, even gas stations it will hurt the people who work there. From them being sick. They may lose there jobs. We may get more jobs but we will lose some too.
