This project has far more far-reaching impacts than a simple dredging activity in Longview. The transportation infrastructure, the negative environmental externalities, and the communities along the railway and barge way network are topics or recipients of impact that may not be excluded from this scoping phase of the EIS.

While the benefits of this proposal focus primarily on economic subjects, I question the long term positives of building an export-based commodity infrastructure in light of the boom and-bust economic capacity of the nation slated to be the #1 consumer of this commodity - China who currently imports the majority of their coal from Australia/Indonesia @ lower margins.
